Keep a firm backbone, fellow citizens. Akron is still on the map. Wait till the census man reports.

Judging from the tone of the Mansfield papers, the people of that town feel like shaking hands with their Akron neighbors. Anyhow it was only two weeks ago that some pious people of Mansfield tarred and feathered some elders of Mr. Dowle's church.

Akron people did the right thing last night in taking Mayor Young's advice and remaining at home. Stay at home tonight, and tomorrow night, and every night until the disorderly folks begin to feel lonesome and ashamed of themselves.

Every non-resident newspaper editor in Ohio seems to feel it incumbent upon himself to tell Akron people and the world how it happened. Akron has survived the late unpleasantness and will have no trouble surviving the shock of these editorial opinions. Say anything you please, gentlemen, and don't be particular about the facts. Some time Akron may have a chance to come back at you.

When the time comes to inquire into the causes that led to Akron's misfortune, tune and disgrace, not the least will be the secretive policy that was maintained by the officials who were responsible for the removal of Negro Peck to Cleveland. Had the sheriff and other officers concerned permitted the local newspapers to tell the people the truth about the removal of Peck to Cleveland, after his removal had been effected, of course, instead of guarding the matter as a personal secret, much of the misunderstanding and disorder might have been avoided. The Democrat believes in telling Akron people the truth, and telling it accurately and frankly, and trusting to their integrity and good citizenship to determine themselves as Akron citizens should. We say this not in a spirit of censure, for what is past cannot be undone. But for the future, spare our people the secret mouger and the censor.

WHY NOT BE TRUTHFUL?

It would be difficult to estimate the damage that has been done to Akron by the intemperate and exaggerated reports that have been sent by correspondents to papers in some of the leading cities of the country.

In the excitement of Wednesday night, when every one was at the highest nervous tension, there was some excuse for inaccuracy but what shall be said of the correspondents who yesterday resorted to deliberate perversion at Akron's expense for the gain of filling space?

A two column article in the Chicago Evening Post, of Thursday evening, is a fair sample of the prevailing exaggeration.

This paper informs its readers that "further rioting was expected as the rioters had broken into an East Akron hardware store and had stolen dynamite with which to blow up the troops." At 2:15, the dispatch adds, "feeling is running high and a leader of the unruly element would probably cause further depredations."

Some passages meriting attention are: "Chief of Police Harrison became a raving maniac, it is said, and fled from the city in a buggy about daylight this morning. He was seen driving south at a breakneck speed."

"At 10 o'clock this morning it was reported that a portion of the mob had marched to East Akron, broken into a hardware store and stolen a quantity of ammunition and dynamite, together with all the guns in the place, and that it was their intention to charge on the troops at the first demonstration. Many members of the mob of last night are still parading the streets, although there is now no organization."

"The mob was led in person by Theodore Maas, father of the negro's victim. It was early in the evening when the mob first began to form, but no one anticipated such a bloody, riotous time as ensued toward midnight. No one seemed to possess courage enough to lead the proposed attack upon the city jail, but finally it was suggested that the father of the little Maas girl be seen. He readily consented to command the assaulting column."

"There was a furious rush for the county jail, and then the crowd swept across the street and forced open the doors of the county courthouse. The old structure was soon packed by the mob, which by this time was frantic over its successive disappointments. Every room was searched except those in the treasury department. A start was made to tear off the iron doors of the treasury, but cooler heads decided against it, and then the thousands of men and boys rushed back to the city prison, crying for the blood of Peck."

"The automobile police patrol wagon was run into the canal and the hospital, city ambulances called for were stopped in the streets."

"In the destruction of the city hall the city lost all records of the clerk and city engineer, City Engineer Payne said the loss in his department was fully $500,000. Other property losses will foot up quite as much."

The Democrat publishes these extracts simply as an illustration of the prevailing style of exaggerations. This dispatch, and others, were sent at a time when the correspondents well knew of their inaccuracies.

It is to be hoped that for the future the correspondents will moderate the tone of their dispatches. It is enough to tell the truth without adding thereto the flights of imagination.

TENTS

Late In Arriving.

Safely Housed Before
Breaking of Storm.Large Crowd at Annual Camp Meeting.Many Noted Ministers Are In Attendance.This Is Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Day.

(Special Correspondence.)

Highland Park Camp, Aug. 24.—This is indeed an auspicious morning, and is enjoyable to the many campers, after the heavy rain of yesterday evening and last night.

Through some misunderstanding or mismanagement, the large tabernacle and 25 tents that were in use in Pickaway county last Sunday, did not get here until the arrival of the 4 o'clock train, when they were dumped off at the entrance to the grounds. Teams were in waiting, and they were hurriedly distributed on the grounds. A large force soon placed the tents over the floors that were arranged previously, so those in waiting for tents and whose goods were exposed were all safely housed before the rain came, and everybody was happy.

The outlook for a successful meeting is most flattering.

There are 50 tents and 11 cottages already taken.

TOWN WAS ORDERLY.

At the Market house and Barnett's barn, everything was quiet. At the Court House there was a rumor that a mass meeting was being held at the corner of Center and Broadway sts. Major Titus investigated, but the crowd consisted only of on-lookers.

Company K was on guard at the jail. Capt. Griebel was taken sick last night, but reported for duty this morning.

A person whose name could not be learned, made several threats at the picket patrolling along the bank on High st. The guard was called and he was taken to the Court House and questioned by the officers. After receiving a lecture he was turned loose.

TURNED BACK.

Colored Cooks Were Not Brought to Akron.

Columbus, Aug. 24.—(Spl.)—When the Fourth reached Mt. Vernon en route to Akron a move was made that indicated fears of a race riot. All the colored cooks were notified by their officers to return to Columbus on the first train.

Whether this action was taken by Colonel Potter as a precautionary measure to prevent a fresh outbreak, or was the result of a message received from Akron is not known. In either event, the incident is one that caused considerable discussion, the colored cooks upon their arrival in the city, spreading the news of their being turned back at Mt. Vernon among their friends before returning to Minerva park.

FARMERS' PICNIC.

People—Was Quick Work.

Columbus, O., Aug. 24.—(Spl.)—'Twas 2:30 a. m., when in the silence of the night, a thousand men at Camp Colt were called to their feet by the beating of the long roll and startling sound of the reveille.

As the short clear blasts of the trumpet rolled over the camp, men rubbed their eyes and scrambled for the door of their tents like persons in a dream. They knew the call and even in the peaceful atmosphere of Camp Colt, with senses dulled by sleep, they read trouble in every note.

It was a thrilling sight. The camp was wrapped in sleep. An occasional flash of the electric lights cast weird shadows and made ghosts of the tents. There was not a sound save the measured tread of the guard. The men were sleeping soundly, as men only sleep in camp, when the bugle call sounded. They were quick to respond. Every man was a question mark, and while the men were ignorant of the cause of this "rude awakening" it was only a few moments before the story had spread and they were all ready to march.

There was little confusion. The officers of the regiment for the most part have had training in camp, and they knew just what to do. Orders were issued concisely and obeyed explicitly. It was a feature not on the program for this week in camp, but the boys welcomed it.

The camp had 5,000 rounds of ammunition for target practice. This supply was quickly got ready for transportation. Every available wagon was pressed into service, and the camp's supply of rations quickly loaded up.

Leaving Captain McCoy and 36 men of Company F to guard the camp, the gallant Fourth quickly moved to Blenden station, and by 4 o'clock the soldiers were on board the train which under direction of District Passenger Agent Harris, moved off at full speed at 4:10 to the rescue of the endangered city.
